The policeman on the beat moved up the avenue impressively. The impressiveness was habitual and not for show, for spectators were few. The time was barely 10 O' clock at night, but chilly gusts of wind with a taste of rain in them had well inight developed the streets.

Trying doors as he went, twirling his club with many intricate and artful movements, turning now and then to cast his watchful eye down the pacific thoroughfare, the officer, with his stalwart form and slight swagger, made a fine picture of a guardian of the peace. The vicinity was one that kept early hours. Now and then you might see the lights of a cigar store or of an all -night lunch counter; but the majority of the doors belonged to business places that had long since been closed.

When about midway of a certain block the policeman suddenly slowed his walk. In the doorway of a darkened hardware store a man leaned with an unlighted cigar in his mouth. As the policeman walked up to him the man spoke up quickly.

"It's all right, officer," he said, reassuringly. "I'm just waiting for a friend. It's an appointment made twenty years ago. Sounds a little funny to you, doesn't it? Well. I'll explain if you'd like to make certain it's all straight. About that long ago there used to be a restaurant where this store stands - Big Joe 'Brady's restaurant.

"Until five years ago." said the policeman. "It was torn down then."

The man in the doorway struck a match and lit his cigar. The light showed a pale, square jawed face with keen eyes. and a little white scar near his right eyebrow. his scarfpin was a large diamond, oddly set.

"Twenty years ago to-night," said the man, "i dined here at 'Big Joe' Brady's with Jimmy Wells, my best chum, and the finest chap in the world. He and I were raised here in New York, just like two brothers. together. I was eighteen and Jimmy was twenty. The next moring I was to start for the West to make my fortune. You couldnt' have dragged Jimmy out of New York; he thought it was the only place on the earth.."

"It sounds pretty interesting," said the policeman. "Rather a long time between meets though, it seems to me. Haven't you heard from your friend since you left?"

"Well, yes. For a time we corresponded," said the other. "But after a year or two we lost track of each other ...."

The waiting man pulled out a handsome watch, the lids of it set with small diamonds.

"Three minutes to ten," he announced. "It was exactly ten O' clock when we parted here at the restaurant door".

The policeman twirled his club and took a step or two.

"I'll be on my way. Hope your friend comes around all right. Going to call time on him sharp?"

'I'll give him half an hour at least. If Jimmy is alive, he' ll be here by that time."

- a) A snake came to my water-trough

On a hot, hot day, and I in pyjamas for the heat.

To drink there.

In the deep, strange-scented shade of the great dark carob-tree

I came down the steps with my pitcher

And must wait, must stand and wait, for there he was at the trough before me.

He reached down from a fissure in the earth-wall in the gloom

And trailed his yellow-brown slackness soft-bellied down, over the edge of the stone trough

And rested his throat upon the stone bottom,

And where the water had dripped from the tap, in a small clearness,
He sipped with his straight mouth.

Softly drank through his straight gums, into his slack long body. Silently.

Someone was before me at my water-trough,

And I, like a second comer, waiting.

He lifted his head from his drinking, as cattle do,

And looked at me vaguely, as drinking cattle do.

And flickered his two-forked tongue from his lips, and mused a moment,

And stooped and drank a little more.
Being earth-brown, earth-golden from the burning bowels of the earth
On the day of Sicilian July, with Etna smoking.
The voice of my education said to me
He must be killed.
For in Sicily the black, black snakes are innocent, the gold are venomous.
And voices in me said, If you were a man
You would take a stick and break him now, and finish him off.
But must I confess how I liked him,
How glad I was he had come like a guest in quiet. to drink at my water-
trough
And depart peaceful. pacified. and thankless.
Into the burning bowels of this earth?
Was it cowardice, that I dared not kill him? Was it perversity, that I longed to talk to him? Was it humility, to feel so honoured?
I felt so honoured.

b) ALISON: Did you manage all right?

HELENA: Of course. I've prepared most of the meals in the last week, you know.

ALISON: Yes, you have. It's been wonderful having someone to help.
Another woman, I mean.

HELENA: (crossing down L.). I am enjoying it. Although I don't think I shall ever get used to having to go down to the bathroom every time I want some water for something.

ALISON: It is primitive, isn't it?

HELENA: Yes. It is rather. (She starts tearing up green salad on to four plates, which she takes from the food cupboard.) Looking after one man is really enough. but two is rather an undertaking.

ALISON: Oh, Cliff looks after himself, more or less. In fact, he helps me quite a lot.

HELENA: Can't say I'd noticed it.

ALISON: You've been doing it instead, I suppose.

HELENA: I see.

ALISON: You've settled in so easily somehow.

HELENA: Why shouldn't I?

ALISON: It's not exactly what you're used to, is it?

HELENA: And are you used to it?

ALISON: Everything seems very different here now- with you here.

HELENA: Does it?

ALISON: Yes, I was on my own before -

HELENA: now you've got me. So you're not sorry you asked me to stay?

ALISON: Of course not. Did you tell him his tea was ready?

HELENA: I banged on the door of Cliff's room, and yelled. He didn't answer, but he must have heard. I don't know where Cliff is.

ALISON: (leaning back in her chair) I thought I'd feel cooler after a bath, but I feel hot again already. God, I wish he'd lose that damned trumpet.

HELENA: I imagine that's for my benefit.
